Temple and Family History Ideas

1. Story: Right a short recap of a relative or pet and something interesting that happened to them.
2. Recipe: Make a favorite family recipe and share it.
3. Indexing: Do one or more batches of indexing files within the next 2-4 weeks
4. Correcting batches: Go on the Family Tree app and help with the improvement of addresses or other data with more specificity.
5. Word Search: Print out the attached FH themed word search puzzle and do it together as a family. (With social distancing of at least 12 inches apart)
6. Talk/message: Read any talk or message by a general authority related to families or family history efforts. There has been a noticeable increase these past 2 years on family history focus, so there is a variety of good material available.
7. Interview: Conduct an interview with a grandparent or older relative while they are still alive. If you can do it in person or via video, consider using the FamilyTree app to record their voice for future archiving.
8. Scrapbooking: Start organizing family photos and event reminders so that you can leave a fun trail for your descendants. If you don't like "old school" actual photos, start a digital format.
9. Poem: Write a short poem about your ancestors or about your own, current family. Make it humorous if you want to.
10. Life History: Following my missionary farewell in 1983, my mom presented me with a book of remembrance which included the first 19 years of my life history as seen through her eyes. (30-40 typed pages). It was an incredible gift that I can add onto before I get too old. So, consider spending an hour or two by creating a framework, year by year since your birth year, of key events from your life. If you start with some main ideas now, you can add to it later as you remember other details that you want to add. We never appreciate this enough until a family member passes away and we realize that we didn't learn nearly enough about them while we had the chance.
11. Traditions: Share some family traditions that your ancestors had or that you have today. It could be holiday related, favorite vacation spots, favorite family activities, etc.
12. Miscellaneous: choose anything appropriate that will bring a family-centered focus to your home.

I Love to See the Temple

By Robert Peterson

We should prepare ourselves to be worthy to attend the temple while we are young. In this picture, look for a barbell, dove, heart, house, foot, key, lightbulb, schoolhouse, scriptures, and two rings; then color the picture.
